

Car companies pull back at New York Auto Show

NEW YORK: This year's toned down New York International Auto Show reflected carmakers' scaled back communications budgets and back-to-basics marketing approach.

« Prev 1 2 3 Next »

Latest News

MLB.com removes blog provoking some customers

Kimberly Maul April 14, 2009

NEW YORK: As baseball season opened last week, MLB.com pulled the plug on its MLBtv blog. The old site - MLBtv.MLBlogs.com - now redirects to its existing customer support forum.

FCC opens RFP for support on extended DTV transition

Frank Washkuch April 13, 2009

WASHINGTON: The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) is seeking an agency for PR and advertising campaign support prior to the June 12 deadline for analog television stations to transition to digital broadcasting.

Check out all 2009 PRWeek Awards winners

In Brief Blog

'Boston Globe' union working with O'Neill and Associates

BOSTON: The Boston Newspaper Guild, the union representing hundreds of Boston Globe employees, hired O'Neill and Associates for strategic messaging....

DoSomething.org hires Hughes as PR manager

NEW YORK: DoSomething.org, a social change organization for teens, named Kevin Hughes as its PR manager, effective March 30. Hughes....

Home > Blogs > In Brief Blog

In Brief Blog

April 14, 2009

DoSomething.org hires Hughes as PR manager

Filed under: Nonprofit, People Moves

Author: Jaimy Lee

NEW YORK: DoSomething.org, a social change organization for teens, named Kevin Hughes as its PR manager, effective March 30. Hughes, a former media relations specialist for Pollock Communications, reports to Nancy Lublin, CEO of the New York-based nonprofit.

Tags: DoSomething.org, Pollock Communications

