

THE DAILY KISS BLOG

Today is Monday April 20, 2009

filed in blog: the daily kiss, lifeadvice

Vote for a Great Cause

April 17, 2009 at 2:04PM by Molly Kissler | 0 comments

DoSomething.org is a nonprofit site that helps connect people to volunteer opportunities in areas they really care about. From animal welfare, to disaster relief, to education, they've got it all. And guess what? Do Something has been nominated for a Webby, which is like the Oscars for Websites!

Do Something is in the Youth category in the Living section, which means that they are up against media giants like MTV and Marvel Comics. But, unlike MTV and Marvel, Do Something was founded recently for less than $150,000, and independent from a larger company. Impressive!

As a nominee, Do Something is also eligible to win a Webby People's Voice Award, which is voted for online by the global Web community. From now until April 30th, fans can cast their votes in The Webby People's Voice Awards! So, go here and vote for Do Something! Websites don't get much more deserving than this one.

Wanna know more about how you can help out in your neighborhood? View/Post comment ▶

A screenshot of the Cosmo Girl! website interface. At the top, it says "COSMO girl!" and "Happy Monday, April 20, 2009". There are navigation links for "VIDEOS | CGI STORE | CGI MOBILE | ADVICE BOARDS" and a search bar. Below the navigation is a menu with categories: "horoscopes", "beauty", "fashion", "life advice", "guys", "entertainment", "fun & games", "free stuff", and "connect". A "FREE STUFF WEEKLY PRIZES ENTER TO WIN >>>" banner is on the left. The main content area features several widgets: "MY COSMOGIRL!" with a login form, "Can't Read Minds?" with a quiz, "EDITOR'S PICKS:" with a list of links, "TAKE THIS QUIZ Always Single?", "WATCH THIS VIDEO", and "TODAY ON COSMOGIRL!" which highlights "THE DAILY KISS" and "DO SOMETHING .ORG". A pink circle highlights the "TODAY ON COSMOGIRL!" section.