

4/11/07

OK! WEEKLY OR CLICK HERE TO SUBSCRIBE ONLINE!

First for celebrity news! Global OK! Sites...

HOME SUBSCRIPTION SURVEY CURRENT ISSUE LATEST NEWS CONTACT US AD INFO

OK! LATEST NEWS

OTHER LATEST NEWS

MOLLY SHANNON TALKS DOGS, OBSESSIONS
 Molly Shannon, 42, may be known for her comic schtick on "Saturday Night Live," but ... More...

HALEY SCARNATO IS LATEST TO LEAVE AMERICAN IDOL
 After skirting (or perhaps, mini-skirting) the fringes of the bottom three since the beginning of ... More...

FRANGELINA? FRAN DRESCHER TALKS TO OK! ABOUT WORKING WITH ANGELINA JOLIE
 The Nanny has left Manhattan and is taking on Capitol Hill. Cancer survivor Fran Drescher has been actively seeking support from those in Washington, D.C. to gain awareness for her Cancer Schmancer foundation. "We're going to plan something that reaches out to women globally to take control of their bodies," Fran told Ok! at the April 10 Brick Awards in New York City, "to ensure that all cancer is diagnosed in stage 1, when it is most curable." And the raven-haired actress has some A-list starpower to lend a helping hand — Angelina Jolie, whose mother Marcheline Bertrand recently passed away after a prolonged battle with cancer, has agreed to join the Cancer Schmancer movement. "We just agreed to do something together," Fran tells OK! about the Oscar-winning star's involvement in the project. "We've both been touched with gynecological cancer, and I think we can move mountains."

The Brick Awards, will air April 12 at 9PM ET on The CW.
 — Alisandra Puliti
 Photos: WireImage

Frangelina? Fran Drescher talks to OK! About working with Angelina Jolie

The Nanny has left Manhattan and is taking on Capitol Hill. Cancer survivor Fran Drescher has been actively seeking support from those in Washington, D.C. to gain awareness for her Cancer Schmancer foundation. "We're going to plan something that reaches out to women globally to take control of their bodies," Fran told Ok! at the April 10 Brick Awards in New York City, "to ensure that all cancer is diagnosed in stage 1, when it is most curable." And the raven-haired actress has some A-list starpower to lend a helping hand — Angelina Jolie, whose mother Marcheline Bertrand recently passed away after a prolonged battle with cancer, has agreed to join the Cancer Schmancer movement. "We just agreed to do something together," Fran tells OK! about the Oscar-winning star's involvement in the project. "We've both been touched with gynecological cancer, and I think we can move mountains.”

The Brick Awards, will air April 12 at 9PM ET on The CW.

— Alisandra Puliti